What Is EMF?

EMF, also known as Electrical Magnetic Field or Electromagnetic Field, refers to the invisible and odorless energy (radiation) that is given out by anything that runs on electricity or has an electrical charge (including your body!). Electric and Magnetic Fields are force fields created when electricity moves through a conductor such as wire.

The Environmental Protection Agency recommends that you limit your exposure to 0.5 mG to 2.5 mG.

When you are three feet away from a microwave, you are exposed to up to 25 mG.

How safe is your home or business?

What Are The Sources of EMF Exposure?

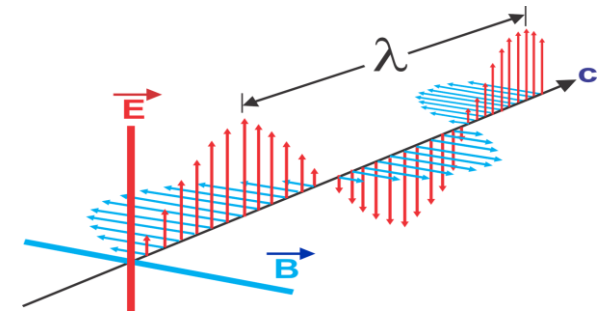

EMFs have always been present in nature. However, with new technologies such as cellphones and Bluetooth, many new sources of EMF have developed including:

- Electrical Wiring
- Televisions
- Appliances
- Computer Monitors
- Motors and heating coils in electronic devices
- WiFi
- Bluetooth Devices
- Cellphones
- Ceiling Fans
- Lighting
- High Voltage Lines

What Are The Symptoms of EMF Exposure?

Some of the more commonly reported symptoms EMF radiation exposure include:

- Fatigue, stress and sleep disturbances
- Pains and aches in your muscles including chest pains
- Cataracts
- Migraine headaches
- Depression, anxiety
- Infertility and birth defects
- Leukemia in children
- Glioblastoma (an aggressive, incurable brain or spine cancer)

Can EMF Exposure Be Prevented?

Unfortunately, not all EMF exposure can be eliminated due to the widespread EMF radiation present in today's environment. However, there are steps that can be taken in your home or business to effectively reduce or shield you and your employees from EMF exposure and hazards.

EMF Testing & Solutions™ specializes in testing and evaluating harmful EMF sources in both home and business environments. Our experts can make recommendations on the most effective measures to reduce your EMF risks.
